Early Morning Fire.

On Monday morning, about four o'clock, our citizens were aroused from their slumbers by the shrill blasts of the gas whistles, sounding the dread fire alarm. In a short space of time our very efficient fire department—three hose companies and one hook and ladder company—rushed to the scene of what proved to be a stubborn two hours' fire. The fire originated in a shed attached to the large Warner House barn, owned by W. G. Gilbert but leased to D. C. Hayes, as livery, The flames rapidly spreading to the seven tons of hay stored in the loft, made it evident to all that a serious and stubborn fire was on hand. Every fireman, the old reserve being out in full force, was energetic in his efforts to save property and confine the fire to the barn. With hard work all of Mr. Hayes horses were removed but it was almost impossible to keep the frightened animals from rushing back to certain death. In addition to Mr. Hayes' loss on hay, all of the winter cutters, sleds, ice plows, tools, etc., were destroyed, entailing a severe loss, at least $800. The fire was a hot one and the fireman were called upon to do heroic work in order to save the adjoining property, especially the harness shop building, situated within a few feet of the fire. The opera house was on fire several times, as was also the P. & E., passenger station, the Warner House rear porch, the home of Mrs. John Farrell, Sr., and the dwelling recently moved to the rear of John Cummiugs' Fourth street lot. Had there been any blowing wind no doubt all the adjoining properties would have been demolished, but, as it was, many buildings caught fire from flying sparks, as far away as M. T. Hogan's residence, corner of Fourth and Maple street, but the fire was soon subdued. Possibly the hardest work was required to save the opera heuse, which was on fire several times but hard work and watchfulness saved it. The P. & E., passenger station, close by, was saved from destruction but badly scorched by keeping a steady stream of water playing on it. Our fire department, taken as a whole, are to be congratulated upon its excellent work and again demonstrated the fact that they can hold in check the most stubborn fire, if given sufficient water pressure. While the water has been scarce we do not hear of lack of a water, even when three or more streams were attached. The admirable and efficient work of Chief Fireman, Mr. A. M. Haupt, upon this occasion is highly commented on by our citizens. Our Chief displays excellent executive ability and was enabled by the use of the Mountaineer Hose Company's chemical cart to save the waste of water. Our citizens are justly proud of the Emporium Fire Department, yet there are some who turn a deaf ear to their appeal for assistance in order to enable them to better battle with the flames. The recent purchase of the chemical cart by the Mountaineers at a cost of about $450, and the boys, in order to still better equip themselves, will give their annual ball and reception, at the opera house, Wednesday evening, Nov. 24th. They should be accorded a rousing attendance, for the boys are sparing no expense or work to make this one of the most enjoyable occasions ever celebrated in Emporium. The popular Germania Orchestra of Lock Haven will furnish the music. Get your girls for the event.

FIRE NOTES.

Mr. Gilbert's loss on the barn is estimated at $1,800; insured for $500. Mr. H. W. Smith's, loss on awnings, screens, tools, &c., is $200; no insurance.

***

Mr. D. C. Hayes resumed business at once having purchased Sheriff J. W. Norris' livery business, stock, etc., on Cherry street, including the real estate. We understand the consideration was about $3,100. Mr. F. D. Logan, who conducts the Broad street livery, purchased a portion of the stock. The reduction of one livery will the better warrant them in improving the service.

All of the property owners who suffered by the fire, are profuse in their thanks to the firemen. Well may they be.

McCLURE'S MAGAZINE wants a man or woman in Emporium and vicinity to attend to its subscription interests. Whole or spare time. There is a liberal guaranteed salary. DEATH'S DOINGS.

LOCKWOOD.

MISS HAZEL B. LOCKWOOD, aged 21 years, seven months and thirteen days died at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Newton, near the Borough line—Mrs. Newton being her grand-mother, after an illness of less than a week, with typhoid fever. Deceased was a very lovable young lady, the daughter of Randolph and Lillian Lockwood of Rich Valley; had been complaining for some time of not feeling well, yet she refused to give up her position at the Novelty Incandescent Lamp works at this place, where she had been a trusted and faithful employee for over two years, until Nov. 1st, when she was compelled to give up her work. She started for home, but feeling so badly stopped at her grand-mother's and medical attendance called. Growing worse she was confined to her bed and she passed away last Sunday morning, surrounded by her almost distracted parents, brothers and sisters and other relatives and dear friends. Her remains were conveyed to her fond parents and comfortable home in Rich Valley by funeral Director C. W. Rishell.

The death of this excellent young lady was a great shock to her many friends here, especiellv the employees of the Lamp Factory, with whom she had so long been daily associated, greatly respected and loved by all. Miss Lockwood was a member of the M. E. Sunday school and was always faithful in her attendance.

The funeral was held from the Rich Valley church last Tuesday afternoon, at two o'clock, and was one of the largest ever held in the Valley. The great grief manifested by the friends of the deceased and the many beautiful testimonials of regard from friends spoke louder than words. Rev. J. F. Anderson, pastor of Emporium M. E. church conducted the services in a feeling manner, assisted by Rev. Osgood of the Valley church. A quartet from Emporium furnished the singing.

A special train on the Emporium & Rich Valley R. R., at one o'clock conveyed about forty-five of the employees of the Novelty Incandescent Lamp works to the funeral. A beautiful floral piece was presented to the family of the dead by the employees of the factory.

The PRESS joins with the afflicted family's many friends here in extending our deepest sympathy.

SHADE.

ABSALOM SHADE, an old and much respected citizen, died at his home at Keating, Clinton county, November, 3, 1909. Deceassd was in his 82 year, having been born May 18, 1828, at Jacksonville, Pa. He has lived on the farm where he peacefully passed his last days, for 51 years. Mr. Shade will be remembered by some of our town people, having lived with his daughter, Mrs. John T. Hertig, for several years. The funeral services were held last Friday from his late home at Keating. Mr. and Mrs. John T. Hertig and Mr. Henry Shade, of this place, attended the funeral. Mr. Shade is survived by the following children: Mrs. John T. Hertig and Henry Shade, Emporium; Alex, Sinnamahoning; John, Hemlock, N. Y.; Mrs. J. A. Rhone and Edward, Keating, Pa., and Mrs. G. Burkhart, Bitumen, Pa., to whom the PRESS extends it s sincere sympathy.

HEILMAN.

An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. F-V. Heilman was interred in Wylie Cemetery yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Heilman's condition on Tuesday and Wednesday was very alarming, little hopes being given for her recovery. As we go to press her condition is more favorable and it is believed she will recover.

***

LUCORE.

The many sympathizing friends of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus F. Lucore, deeply regret that death has again invaded their home, taking their infant son, only a few days old. Its remains were interred at Sizerville on Tuesday.

***

WHEATON.

Rural Free Delivery Carrier, Mr. T. L. Wheaton and wife mourn the death of an infant son, which was buried on Wednesday.

MUNDY.

DANIEL MUNDY died at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lyons, on West Creek this (Thursday) morning. Mr. Mundy has been a resident of this county for the past fifty years and faithfully served his country during the civil war. Deceased was about 77 years of age. C. W. Rishell took charge of the remains and prepared them for burial Mr. Mundy was a great friend of the children and as long as he had any money nothing pleased him more than to make the children happy. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral.

Administratrix Sale.

Mrs. Gertrude Peters, administratrix of the estate of O. S. Peters, deceased, will on Tuesday, Nov. 23, 1909, at one o'clock, p. m., sell the following personal property: Wagons, horses, cows, furniture. etc. Don't forget the date. 39-2t.

The Cruise Around the World.

Mr. Clark writes, "New York, Nov. 2d, 1909. The "Cleveland" is maintaining her schedule and is reported as arriving at Port Said this morning. Everybody in good health. The party will remain in Cario for three days, and then rejoin the steamer at Suez for the voyage to India.

FRANK C. CLARK."

We have an interesting letter from Hon. and Mrs. Geo. J. LaBar, who are making a four months' tour around the world, which will appear in our next issue. Watch for it.

Opening of the Basketball Season.

Tomorrow evening, is the the opening of the basket ball season for the home team and the toss-up will be between Renovo and Emporium. Our home team is under the careful management of H. S. Falk, with Prof. R. H. Edger as captain. The team is composed of the following—Messrs. Edgar, Vogt, Ellis, Bush, Lawley, Hockley and Bachop. Let everybody turn out and aid the team financially.

The Emporium team will play at Eldred on Saturday night.

Rev. Lux's Last Sunday.

Next Sunday. November 14th, the Rev. Lux will sever his relationship as pastor of the Presbyterian Church. Rev. Lux has made many friends during his short pastorate at Emporium and not only the members of his church but many friends outside of the congregation will miss him. Rev. Lux will preach on the following subjects next Sunday, "The Kingdom of God and its Priviledges," and the evening subject is "Slime Pits." The PRESS joins with the many friends of Rev. Lux, in wishing him unbounded success in his new field of labor at Haverhill, Mass.

The New Archdeacon of Erie.

The Rev. Reginald S. Radcliffe, Rector of Grace Church, Ridgway, and who for several years was Arch-deacon of Central Pennsylvania, may again be addressed as Arch-deacon by right of office, and not merely by way of courtesy. At the meeting of the Arch-deaconary of Erie, held in St. Paul's Church Erie, last week, he was nominated by the meeting and appointed by the Bishop to fill the vacant office of Arch-deacon of Erie. This does not mean that he will give up his parish, but that he will discharge the duties of the Arch-deacon's office in addition to his ordinary parish work. Arch-deacon Radcliffe is well and favorably known in Emporium. At the same meeting the Rev. J.M. Robertson was re-elected secretary of the Arch-deaconary and the Hon. Josiah Howard a member of the Executive committee.

Hallowe'en Party.

A large and cultured party assembled at the home of Aunt Maggie Chapman's at Sterling Run, Saturday evening, Oct. 30, to enjoy the entertainments given by the Thimble Club at that place. It was thoroughly enjoyed from beginning to end and was the best, claimed by all present, that has been held for years. It was indeed unique, as no similar party has before been attempted. All thoroughly enjoyed the bob for apples, witch and ghosts fortune telling and similar games. The rooms were alone lighted with jack lanterns and trimmed with nature's beautiful leaves and vines. It was certainly fine, as many were heard to remark that they were sorry Hallowe'en didn't come every week instead of once a year.

Hair Dressing, Manicuring, Etc.

Having taken a thorough course in hair dressing , treating all disease, of the scalp, manicuring, pedicuring, etc., I am now ready to serve the public either at their residence or at the home of Herbert Day, on Woodland Avenue. Phone orders will receive immediate and prompt attention. I carry a full line of hair goods and toilet articles. Your patronage is solicited. Phone 7. 38-4t. MISS RACHEL DAY.

Mrs. John Farrell, Sr., desires to thank the friends and neighbors who so kinkly assisted in the bucket brigade to save her home during the fire on Monday morning.

Hunting Party.

L. S. Fisk, Fred Arn Johnson, Lawrence Fisk and other friends are spending the week, camping on North Creek, close to the bear lines. When they return home bear meat will be in abundance.

Straw Ride.

The C. E. Society of the Baptist Church will enjoy a straw ride up Rich Valley to the home of Mr. Leadbetter, Saturday evening. The members will meet at the Church and at the home of Miss Jennie Loucks at 7:45.

Birthday Party.

A birthday surprise party was held at the home of W. H. Weaver and wife on Saturday, Nov. 6, 1909, about forty being present. The evening was spent in games and music. Refreshments, were served at a late hour. All report an enjoyable time.

Pleasant Evening.

Class No. 1 of the Baptist S. S., was entertained last evening at the home of Mrs. R. A. Eick. Vocal and instrumental music was furnished by Misses Vera Olmsted, Elizabeth Crandell, Rachael Day and Mr. C. E. Crandell. Several contests took place during the evening, chief among which was a button sewing contest. Mr. Johnson won first prize with Mr. Crandell a close second. Time 1½ minutes.

All seats free. Good singing. A heart welcome.

JOHN L. BOGUE, Pastor.

Selecting Site for Post Office.

Mr. E. M. Norris, of Washington, D. C., representing the Post Office Department, was in Emporium on Tuesday examining the several sites offered by five citizens for the new location of post office. The following properties are tendered: John Cummings and W. G. Gilbert, east and west side of Wood street, corner of Fourth; W. G. Gilbert, Broad street, near depot; Geo. H. Spring, corner Fourth and Chestnut streets; B. Egan, store room in Olmsted block. The Inspector made no mention, we are told, of a choice but will make his report to the Department. No doubt it will be decided upon within two weeks. Whoever secures the prize must fit up an office as per schedule and give a lease for a term of years.

A New Doll Department.

The Big Store has just opened a Doll Department, where any size and kind of a doll, from the smallest to one as big as a two year old child can be found. Dolls are not toys. Ask any little girl if her doll is a toy and she'll tell you, "No ! for a doll is a very important part of a little girl's life." She surrounds her doll with the necessities, comforts and luxuries of life, as does her mother the baby. Bring the little girls to Business Men's Club.

There will be a meeting of the Business Men's Club, at Mountaineer Hose Company room, this (Thursday) evening, at 8:00 o'clock.

By order of President.

F. F. HILLIKER, Sec'y.

The Amendments Carry.

All of the amendments to the Constitution voted at the election have been adopted, except the seventh and possibly the schedule. Under the Constitution as amended, election boards will be elected in the odd years and appointed in the even years. The defeat of the seventh amendment leaves the term of election officers one year, while adoption of the other amendments provides for their election only every two years, consequently appointments must be made every other year, thus producing the very condition the voters supposed they were going to prevent. In case the schedule is defeated a special session of the Legislature will possibly be necessary, thereby incurring a large expense. Those yellow journals, and very generally the Democratic press, evidently did not know what they were howling about.

Pushing the Work.

The grading on the new coal road at Sterling Run is being pushed by the contractors, Messrs. Martino & Bevacque, of Bradford. It is anticipated the road will be completed, a distance of 2¾ miles, by Jan. 1st, 1910 This will give the Furnace Company a large area of excellent coal for coxing purposes, at Canoe Run. The season of 1910 promises to be one of the best in the iron business.

Looks That Way.

We learn that Duke Pye has again changed his residence to Starr Hill, where he is assisting Joshua Starr with his carpenter work on Mrs. Kephart's house, which no doubt will be his own some day. Joshua is a good carpenter and industrious workman. He has cleared this fall, quite a patch and no doubt will get a help-mate, having things looking nice, That's right, Joshua; have a cage for the bird before you catch her. Then you are more sure to keep her.

OPERA HOUES

Thursday Night, Nov. 18

The greatest in Theatrical History.

Lena Rivers

BY

Buelah Poynter

From the Mary J. Holmes' Novel
Bright lines and wit, pathos and dramatic intensity. Everybody wants to see "LENA"
Special scenery, Rich Dressing, Original Cast.

Prices 25c, 35c, 50c and 75c.

Triennial Assessments.

The county assessors have commenced their work for the triennial assessments for 1910. It is the intention and instructions of the county commissioners to follow the letter of the law in this particular matter; that is all property will be assessed at actual value, or what it would sell at forced sale. We believe it to be the correct way if honestly adjusted and equalized.

"Lena Rivers."

The presentation of "Lena Rivers" which is to be made at the Emporium Opera House on Thursday evening, Nov. 18, should prove highly diverting. It would seem as if every one had read Mrs. Mary J. Holmes' book, and it would also seem as if every one who has done so, wants to see the play dramatized from it.

"Lena Rivers."

When Nixon & Co., decided to put out a production of "Lena Rivers," dramatized from Mrs. Mary J. Holmes' novel, they immediately engaged Miss Buelah Poynter, to make the book into play form. Miss Poynter made a careful study of the book and then decided to visit the scenes of the book, as the story is a true one in a great many respects. This play will be presented at the Emporium Opera House, Thursday evening, Nov. 18th.

Tremendous Sale.

The full page advertisement in the PRESS announcing the eleventh annual clearance sale of Jasper Harris, the energetic and well-known Fourth street Clothier and Furnisher, will be read with interest by our readers. Cut out the ad. mark the articles you desire and call early. This will be the greatest bargain sale ever held in this section of the state. It will pay you to call.

Great Attractions.

The attractions at the Theatorium are certainly fine. The double show last evening was certainly a dandy, especially "The Queen of the Lions," which would bear repeating. These clean and popular attractions certainly deserve a large house nightly—in fact they are generally crowded nightly.

If you desire a clear complexion take Foley's Orino Laxative for constipation and liver trouble as it will stimulate these organs and thoroughly cleanse your system, which is what everyone needs in order to feel well. Sold by all druggists

Remembered Dereliction.

On a recent Sunday the clergyman of a parish church in Kent, England, was reading the notices for the week, and concluded by saying: "There will be christening next Sunday at ten-thirty." He then slowly walked to the pulpit. Suddenly turning toward the congregation, he remarked in severe tones: "Remember, Mrs. Tomlinson, I said ten-thirty. A year ago you were late, I believe."

Lucky Eskimos.

The Eskimos have no physicians; indeed, have no name for drugs or doctors. Nature here acts the good sanitarian and shuts the door against all disease germs and blends in their food iodin, the most powerful and least harmful of all antiseptics. The use of remedies either inside or out is unknown. Wounds heal up at once without mattering. All tumors, warts and cancers are unknown.

Pre-eminent Distinction.

If there be no nobility of descent, the more indispensable is it that there should be nobility of ascent—a character in them that bear rule so fine and high and pure that as men come within the circle of its influence, they involuntarily pay homage to that which is the one pre-eminent distinction—the royalty of virtue.—Henry C. Potter.

Youthful Wisdom.

Berk, aged four, insisted on running off to play with a little girl his age. His mother told him that a dog might bite him if he didn't stay at home. He answered that he would hit the dog with his stick. "Yes," said his mother, "but you had no stick." Berk replied: "and there wasn't any dog, either."—Delineator.

Expensive.

A little girl of about seven entered the store the other day to procure some cloth to make her dolly a dress. When handed the package she asked the cost. "Just one kiss," the merchant answered. "All right," was her reply. "Grandma said she would pay you when she came in to-morrow."—The Housekeeper.

Gentle Advice.

A man takes contradiction and advice much more easily than people think, only he will not bear it when it is violently given, even though it be well founded. Hearts are flowers; they remain open to the softly falling dew, but shut up in the violent downpour of rain.—Richter.

Seeker After Knowledge.

Little Egbert one day observed his mother making tea. "What kind of tea is that mamma?" he asked. "Why, I don't recall the name. Why do you ask?" "I was just wondering whether it was the Libby tea we sing about at school."—Delineator.

What They Look Like.

The little boy had been given oyster stew for dinner. The oysters were unusually large. After peering intently into the bowl for some time he looked up into his mother's face and said, "I don't like hoppy-toads."—Delineator.

Conserving Child Life.

It is much more important that we care for the children who are born than that we should indulge in the notion that a vast increase in population is of value.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Highest Flight of Kite.

The world's record flight of a kite is 23,111 feet above sea level. The kite started from a mountain top where the temperature was 79 degrees aboxe zero and at its highest point reached 5.4 degrees below zero.

City Undesirables.

It is estimated that 113,000 adult males in New York city make a living by "their wits," without in any sense being an economic factor aiding in production or distribution.

RULE OF MAJORITY

PLEA OF PRESIDENT FOUNDED ON CONSTITUTION.

Protest Is Allowable, But Repudiation of Duties Is Looked Upon as a Display of Littleness Not to Be Permitted.

President Taft in his third sermon in the series of discourses upon moral themes that has marked his intinerary took for his text "Personal Restraint." In the home, in the shop, at the counter—everywhere the man who can say no at the right time is above temptation. The man who can say yes at the right time has the field of opportunity before him. In the little things of man's varied relations is found the key to character. When he has thrown aside his habiliments as president of the United States, or judge, or clerk, or laborer; when he is in the home and his most intimate nature is revealed, the real test is applied to a man. Mr. Taft referred to the impatient, snappish answer of a husband to a tired wife, admitted he had not been above the fault of shortness in replies and condemned such things as indications of an inaptitude for restraint which, if not corrected, makes its appearance in the larger relations of life.

"He who conquers himself is greater than he who taketh a city." Such was the suggestive text for the presidential discourse. There are many persons who regard a position of power as relieving them of the common amenities and considerations of life. They become puffed up and conceited or opinionated and intolerant. Such persons, by seeking to repress the individuality of others, tend to lower the plane of life expression, and by their illustration of the spirit of intolerance and peevishness, of envy, spite, retaliation or revenge, demean life and lower its standards.

Mr. Taft does not preach a goody-goody, but a practical gospel of mutuality and helpfulness. He declared in the Fresno discourse for respect for the will of the majority. Yet, on the other hand, he remarks the true strength and dignity of sentiment is found when the majority respects the minority voice. It is the petty and grasping, the self-seeking and sordid who seek no entrench themselves in political or any other kind of power by denying to the voice of the minority the consideration that such voice deserves. After all, the majority rules, but unless it is corrected and checked by the minority it is an autocracy rather than a representative and creditable force.

Mr. Taft regards as pusillanimous a minority that takes to the woods when beaten instead of sturdily fighting the battle from such vantage ground as is left it; doing the work of protest and criticism and taking hold of such levers as it may grasp. The mere repudiation of duties because they are not paramount, of responsibilities because they are not crucial, he regards as a species of littleness that should not be displayed in a land of liberty and individuality. Such doctrine is sound; it is good tonic, and those who grasp the president's viewpoint of control and restraint have acquired a breadth of philosophy and ethics that will enable them to do their full share in every phase in life.—Baltimore American.

Bryan Is It.

What is the use, asks William Jennings Bryan, in his supreme satisfaction with his representative character as a Democrat, for the Democratic party to hold a conference to mark out measures? Certainly the great commoner is well within bounds logical when he reasons that he has not diminished a whit in his power of originating policies, while the party has not advanced a jot in its ability to do more than harp upon the lonesome string of Cleveland principles. Mr. Bryan is not assured that any national conference would have truly representative character, by which, of course, is meant he has no assurance that it would have an overwhelming majority of Bryanites in it.

Mr. Bryan is too busy in coining speech into currency to give attention just now to wizardizing a convention assembled for the mere matter of talking. He has his talk classified by this time and it is not the season for an output of gratuitous afflatus upon political subjects. He must cut his winter wheat while the chautauqua sun is shining. Mr. Bryan is a wise politician and knows that the times and periods that govern his appearances in the political field are as accurately guided by conditions as the recurrence of the seasons. This may be the winter of the party's discontent, but the sun of serenity ever halos the brow of the man who, when his party is floundering and seeking to find stable ground, remarks: "Oh, what is the use? I'll come along with a sheaf of enthusiasm after awhile and an entire new draft of policies ready made for the party."

Party Voters with the President.

Taft's position is impregnable as a choice of tactics in party leadership. The party voters will be pleased with the president's exposition of party duties. They will sustain the party majority and keep it in power. There is not a doubt that his constructive, definite, moderate views, contrasted with the demoralizing, vindictive, upsetting purpose of the opposing Democratic organization, embody the preference of the average American voter. By pursuing this course Mr. Taft will have persuaded and conquered Republican opinion in the west.—Omaha Bee (Rep.).

THE ARMY AND THE CITIZEN

Memories of Self-Sacrifices Are Worth Much to the People of Any Country.

At a banquet of the Illinois Sons of the American Revolution Gen. Grant said: "When a people cast aside sentiments of patriotism and ideals of loyalty they become sordid, and sordidness marches hand in hand with vice." The general said that the youth of the country should be taught to revere the memories of the men who had fought for principle.

With monuments dotting the land in recognition of the services of heroes of war and peace it might seem that the general's advice is not needed. It is needed, however, and the sharpness of the need has been more manifest in the last ten years than ever before. President Taft found it necessary to plead for decent treatment for the army. An underpaid organization for ten years has been facing death and disease in tropical countries, has done its duty faithfully and its reward has been the frequent sneer.

It is impossible to read the story of the fight in front of Santiago, Cuba, and then to understand the tendency of the people to belittle it and to withhold the praise that is due the soldiers who fought in it. The Sixth regular infantry in a few hours of heroic fighting lost 13 officers and 105 men, about 26 per cent. of the fighting force of the organization.

After the battle of Santiago, in seeking to cast ridicule on one man whom it did not like, a newspaper spoke of the First volunteer cavalry as "the Rough Riders who never rode." From this it was taken for granted by the unthinking that the volunteer cavalry had borne no worthy part in the fight. The sneer has lived and it shows itself frequently. The Rough Riders lost six officers and 81 men in the battle. They advanced to the fight on foot, as did every other cavalry organization that was engaged. The commanding officer who would have sent mounted regiments into that fight would have been a fool and a criminal.

The men who go to the front are heroes at the time of the fighting. The people cannot do too much for them. They deserve respect for what they have done even in the days when the wars seem a long way off. The memories of self-sacrifice are worth something to any country.

Reviving American Shipping.

President Taft's advocacy of mild experiments in the subsidizing of American merchant ships has not awakened very many responsive thrills. The out-and-out advocates of ship subsidies realize that under the crippling operations of the American navigation laws strong stimulants are needed if results are to be gained. While to make a beginning would give them hope of large and important subsidies to come, it is going to be difficult to convince inland constituencies of receptive congressmen that measures ineffective in themselves are intrinsically worth while.

There is no doubt at all that the American flag ought to be restored to the seas. To say that the high wages of American shipwrights and American seamen put the American merchant marine at a hopeless disadvantage is easy, but not necessarily accurate. Good wages bring superior service. There is, however, no offset to needless expense of materials for ships.

If efforts equal to those put forth to get subsidies out of the national treasury were directed to overcoming by wise legislation the fundamental causes of the decay of the American merchant marine it is likely that substantial progress would come without much delay.

President Taft should consider well this side of the question. Since he announces that he will join in the task of reviving American shipping he should not rest content with merely urging subsidies to a few ship owners out of the insufficient funds of the post office department.—Chicago Record-Herald (Ind. Rep.).

Setting It Straight.

Gen. Robert Shaw Oliver, assistant secretary of war, officially discredits the recent report from the war department that because of the disabilities and difficulties experienced in the war game in Massachusetts there were to be no more joint maneuvers by the regular army and state guards. The department, he says, has not the slightest intention of varying from the plans previously made and followed. But there will be a modification that will, he hopes, avoid the troubles encountered in Massachusetts.

The officers of the war department having jurisdiction over the instruction and training of the National Guard organizations have decided that hereafter only picked men shall be allowed to participate. The medical officers of the guard will be directed to make more stringent medical examination of recruits entering the militia, and no member not physically able to stand the strain will be allowed to take part in the maneuvers. Further, only such state organizations as prove in the camps of instruction fit to take part and competent in their work will be given the privilege.

This is a more sensible course than that first announced of abandoning the joint maneuvers altogether, which, however, was then said to be based upon the conclusion that the results were not worth the hardship experienced by unfitted guardsmen. The effect of the modification will be to eliminate the physically unfit and to train or eliminate the incompetent. The discrimination must tend to an improvement of the standard of the state troops and work for progress all along the line.

GIVES AWAY LARGE SUM

JOHN STUART KENNEDY LEAVES $25,000,000 TO CHARITIES.

Presbyterian Church and Colleges Will be the Beneficieries of Fortune from Man Who Rose from Bottom.

New York City.—Starting as an errand boy in Glasgow, Scotland, John Stuart Kennedy died in New York recently worth $60,000,000. His will, filed for probate November 5 by Robert W. Deforrest, one of his executors, and who drew the Scotchman's last testament, bequeaths $25,000,000 to public charities.

Mr. Kennedy had risen from errand boy to shipping clerk when he came to New York nearly 60 years ago as the representative of a Scotch shipping firm. He amassed his great fortune mainly through shrewd and far-sighted railroad investments. Broadly speaking he leaves a little more than one-quarter of his entire estate to his wife, Emma B. Kennedy, who survives him, a little more than another quarter to relatives and friends, and gives something less than one-half to various charitable, religious, benevolent and educational institutions.

The gift to charity is the largest single contribution of its kind ever made and the beneficiaries include educational and church institutions, north, south, east and west in this country, and five abroad, 60 in all.

Nearly half of the $25,000,000 goes to institutions connected with the Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Kennedy had been an active member for many years. Other large beneficiaries include the American Bible society, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the New York Public library, the New York United Charities, Columbia university and Robert college, Constantinople.

The charitable, religious and educational institutions which receive the largest bequests are to share the residue of the estate left after definite gifts of approximately $12,000,000 have been paid out.

MILLIONS TO FIGHT PLAGUES

Mrs. Russell Sage to Give $1,000,000 to Fight Tuberculosis—A Like Sum from Carnegie to Combat Pellegra.

Washington, D. C.—Following the donation of a million dollars by John D. Rockefeller to be used in fighting the hook worm disease in the south, officials of the treasury and the public health and marine hospital service have received information that two other million-dollar donations are likely to be forthcoming very soon; one from Mrs. Russell Sage, to be used in extending the work for eradication of tuberculosis; the other from Andrew Carnegie for fighting pellagra, a mysterious disease that has baffled scientists.

The understanding is that all these sums will be placed at the disposal of the same general authorities, associated with the public health and marine hospital service. The latter would not give positive confirmation of the reports, but in other quarters it was learned that there is the best of reason for expectation that these sums will be given and that announcement will come very soon.

HISTORICAL MANOR BURNS

House in Which George Washington Was Sworn Into Office Catches from Bonfire.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—The historical Livingston Manor, owned by John Henry Livingston and located near Tivoli, on the banks of the Hudson river, was destroyed by fire November 5.

Livingston Manor was made famous in history because it was in this house, which was erected in 1783, that Chancellor Livingston swore George Washington into office in 1789. The estate was known as "Idele" and had just been remodeled. Its novel architecture had been copied by architects from all parts of the country. The fire was caused by burning leaves and the loss is $25,000.

COUNTRY'S WEALTH GAINING

Trade Reports Hold Out the Promise for 1910 of a Year of Unequalled Business.

New York City.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Without exception the reports of trade, both wholesale and retail, in all parts of the country are more than satisfactory and hold out the promise for 1910 of a year of unequalled business. What this means, expressed in almost inconceivable figures, is that the United States is now increasing its wealth at a rate never before achieved.

Neither the high prevailing prices nor the discussion of disputed economic policies seem in any way to shake confidence or check the industrial progress.

Automobiles and Horses Burned.

New York City.—While Clendenin J. Ryan, son of Thomas F. Ryan, the traction magnate, and a band of volunteer fire fighters—many of them millionaires—fought a blaze which started in the garage at young Ryan's country estate near Suffern, N. Y., three valuable automobiles, several thoroughbred horses and several outbuildings were thoroughly destroyed. The Ryan mansion was saved. The loss on the other buildings and on the automobiles and horses is said to approximate $100,000.

Reform Candidates Win in Two Ohio Cities—Elections Held in Many States and Cities Throughout the United States.

Cleveland, O.—Elections were held on November 2 in many states and cities throughout the country, with varying results, there being no national issue involved to bring about concerted party action.

In Massachusetts the returns indicate that Gov. Eben Draper, Republican, had been re-elected over James H. Vahey, Democrat, by a greatly reduced majority, estimated at 10,000.

In Rhode Island, Gov. Pothier, Republican, was re-elected over Olney Arnold, Democrat, by a substantial majority.

In New York City, which has been the storm center of the state, Tammany Hall scored a decisive triumph in the mayoralty election, Judge William A. Gaynor, the Democratic nominee supported by Tammany, rolling up a plurality of upward of 70,000 over Otto T. Bannard, Republican, who in turn led William R. Hearst by approximately 25,000.

New York state elected an assembly that will show a Republican majority of about 38.

In Buffalo, Louis P. Fuhrmann, Democratic candidate for mayor, was elected by a plurality of 1,245 over Jacob J. Siegrist, the Republican candidate.

In Philadelphia, another battle ground on reform issues, Samuel P. Rotan (Rep.) was elected district attorney over D. Clarence Gibboney, representing the Law and Order society and the reform element. Rotan's majority exceeded that in a previous reform campaign, being estimated at upward of 30,000.

Meager returns from San Francisco indicate the defeat of Francis J. Heney and the election of McCarthy, the union labor candidate, for mayor.

The Pennsylvania state elections for treasurer, auditor, general and justice of the supreme court resulted in the usual Republican majority.

In Indianapolis, where the temperance issue has figured, Lewis Shank (Rep.) is elected over Charles A. Gauss (Dem.)

Elections in New Jersey went almost equally both ways. Interest principally hinged upon the battle for the mayoralty of Jersey City, where Pagan, the new idea Republican champion, was probably beaten by Otto Wittpen, the Democratic incumbent.

In Virginia the early returns indicate that the Democratic ticket, headed by Judge Mann, for governor, had been elected by about the usual majority.

Slow returns from Baltimore indicate that the constitutional amendment aimed to disfranchise the negro has been defeated by more than 20,000. The foreign born element in Baltimore city voted strong against the amendment, fearing it would imperil their franchise as well as that of the negro. The legislature appears to be safely Democratic, insuring the reelection of Isadore Rayner as United States senator.

Local elections in Kentucky, as had been promised by the warlike moves of the rival factions, was marked for bloodshed and in Breahitt county, the seat of the feudists, one man was shot and killed at a polling place.

The "drys" of Illinois won another victory. Of 33 precincts in which local option was before the voters the anti-liquor advocates carried 28, an increase of four precincts over two years ago.

Reform Candidates Win in Two Ohio Cities.

Columbus, O.—George S. Marshall (Rep.) was elected mayor after a bitter campaign by a plurality of close to 4,000. The entire Republican ticket was elected with the possible exception of C. H. Smith for treasurer, who was openly fought by the organization headed by Malcolm Karshner, member of the Republican state committee from Franklin county. The Republicans will control the new city council by a decisive majority.

The hand of Cox appears to have lost little of its grip on the city on the Ohio river, for the ballots so far counted there indicate that Dr. Louis Schwab (Rep.) has been chosen mayor. In voting thus the people of that city refused to accept the services of John Weld Peck, the young lawyer running on the Democratic ticket, whose campaign was made strictly one of reform. His attack was always against the Cox machine, and with the organization they had this year the Democrats of the city had some hope of defeating the boss who so long has dictated affairs to the voters of all parties.

In Youngstown Democratic Mayor Craver is elected by a reduced plurality over Paul Jones, the former Michigan football player and Reserve coach. Mayor Turnbull of Canton has been carried back into office by the Democrats by a large plurality. Dougherty, his opponent, conceded Turnbull's election.

Akron, O.—The early election returns indicate the re-election of Mayor W. T. Sawyer (Dem.) by 2,000. The first ten precincts showed an average gain of 20 to a precinct for him over two years ago, when City Solicitor C. F. Berry, his opponent, was defeated by 1,045.

Dayton, O.—The Democrats scored a sweeping victory here, electing Mayor E. E. Burkhart and the entire ticket with the possible exception of the clerk of the police court. The Democrats claim a plurality of 5,000 for Burkhart, and the election of the city council and municipal ticket.

Toledo, O.—Brand Whitlock is re-elected mayor of Toledo for a third term. Early returns from the down town precincts, where his adversary, David T. Davies, was expected to be strongest, showed such slight gains that all hope of overcoming Whitlock's plurality of 6,500 in 1907 was abandoned and both Republican organs acknowledged the election of Whitlock, but claim the rest of the ticket. Whitlock probably will have over 4,000 plurality.

Cleveland, O.—Herman C. Baehr was elected mayor of Cleveland. A plurality of at least 5,000, growing with the later returns, seems to have swept every Republican candidate in with Baehr. Newton D. Baker gave his opponent the hardest fight of all, and has probably been elected over Dahl for city solicitor. The city council will be overwhelmingly Republican, with 25 members of that party and seven Democrats for members.

Beheads Wife and Child; Suicides.

Pottsville, Pa.—Demented through worrying over his inability to make a success of his business, Daniel Schoke, a butcher, who lived at Pine Grove, near here, beheaded his wife and 12-year-old daughter with a butcher knife and then committed suicide by shooting himself. Schoke was 55 years old. He was of rather peculiar and unsteady disposition and several times failed in business, but his relatives came to his assistance each time and started him in business agair

Five Perish in Cottage Fire.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Mother love led Mrs. Frances Marlow, wife of William Marlow, a miner, to her death with four of her children in a fire that destroyed their home in Penn township. Lysie Marlow, 8, was saved by his brother, Clyde, 12, who perished with his mother. Marlow and two elder sons had gone to work. A lamp in the kitchen was overturned. Clyde rushed his younger brother from the house and hurried with his mother to the upper floor, where the younger children were sleeping.

For the Hostess

Chat on Interesting Topics of Many Kinds, by a Recognized Authority

A Harvest Home Party.

In Sweden they make a ceremony of bringing in the last sheaf of wheat signifying that the "summer is over and the harvest ended." With this in mind, a hostess who is noted for her originality issued invitations for a "Harvest Home" party at her place in the country. It is now quite the thing not to return to town until the first of November, so the beautiful foliage and the glories of autumn are enjoyed to the full. At this party, which was given last year, too late to get in the department owing to the fact that it must be made up several weeks in advance, the house and spacious verandas were literally covered with gorgeous oak and maple leaves, as was the lower floor of the great barn where dancing took place at eight o'clock. The hours were from five to ten, which just permitted the making of trains to and from the city.

A novel feature was the playing of the band composed of the workmen on the place. They were mostly Germans, and as each department had its own foreman with helpers the organization was quite complete as well as unique. They played for the dancing, and to a most stirring march they led the gay party to the last sheaf of wheat in the field. It was laid in the pony cart belonging to the ten-year-old daughter of the house, who drove the prettily decorated pony into the barn, where the sheaf was placed in the middle of the cleanly swept floor and the hostess paid a tribute to Ceres, a health being drunk in mulled cider made on the place and served by the hostess. After a supper of fried chicken, boiled ham, hot muffins, rice and tomatoes cooked together with shrimp, which the colored cook said was "Jumbalaya," tea, coffee, Macedoine of vegetable, salad and pumpkin pie, the dancing began After a few informal dances there was what the hostess called a "Farmers'" cotillon, because all the figures pertained to work on the farm, and the favors consisted of big straw hats, sunbonnets, whips, milking stools, tin pails, spades, rakes, hoes, etc. It was all very original and pretty. Cider frappe was on hand for the dancers.

A Geographical Party.

This was given by a gay party of young people and all pronounced it a success. The invitations had the usual day, date and hour, with the jingle given, which explained a wee bit the character of the affair, or, as a youth aptly expressed it, "what you were up against."

All guests who want to win a prize
Should on the atlas glue their eyes,
Brush up their knowledge, cram their pates
With abbreviated states
With maps of many a foreign clime,
And rivers they must put in rhyme.

The first stunt was to read the following "stately story" and fill in the blanks with the abbreviations of the name of a state. The story here has the blanks correctly filled for the benefit of the hostess.

A handsome (Md.) fell in love with a (Miss.) whom he attended when she was (Ill.), and who was sweeter than any flower of the (Del.). He asked her hand in marriage, but her (Pa.) wished her to wed his war time friend, the (Col.), who was rich, but who looked as if he had come out of the (Ark.). So he put the doctor off by saying he would (Conn.) the matter (Ore.). But the lover pressed him, and said: "(Wy.) will (U.) not give (Me.) an answer?" The father, being a Yankee, answered his question by asking another, "(Kan.) you support a wife?" and added bluntly that he feared his daughter would have to (Wash.) for her living, should she marry so poor a man. The young man replied: "Although I am poor, (Io.) No man, and I (Wis.) I could support my wife, (R. I.) would not marry." When he met his sweetheart next morning at early (Mass.) and told her of the interview, she said: "(La.) I could love you no (Mo.) had you all the wealth of (Ind.)." So they were married at (Tenn.) o'clock and the husband got (Ariz.) in his profession, and there is (O.) to keep them from being happy.

After this came a map-drawing contest. The guests were handed large sheets of paper with pencils and told to draw any country they chose, with a few principal rivers, mountains and cities; to write their names and the name of the country on the back and pin the paper on the wall. Then all had to guess what was what. The one who guessed the most correctly received a prize. Slips of paper were then passed containing the names of two rivers, which were to be woven into a rhyme. The results were read aloud and were very amusing. Floating island and small sponge cakes were served. The prizes were interesting foreign prints framed in plain wooden mouldings.

MADAME MERRI.

FANCIES OF FASHION.

Long sashes are being worn with coat suits.

Paris is offering all sorts of hats except small ones.

White cony will be a leader in fur coats for young girls.

Gold braid will figure prominently as a coiffure ornament.

Corsets are longer over the hips but cut lower at the top.

Newest belt buckles and pins combine mother of pearl and jet.

Puffs are still worn, but are small and soft and irregular in shape.

The scarab is a leader among decorations for pins and dainty buckles.

For fall wear many double veils of contrasting colors are being offered.

Red is a brilliant exception to the rule that makes for dull hued colors.

Sleeves in little girls' dresses are fuller, long, and have often one or two puffs.

Dog collars in velvet are being embroidered in tiny buds and flowers in natural colors.

Autumn Street Suits

The suit on the left is made up of a gray cloth, and is worn with lynx fur. The collar and the cuffs are of corded silk in black. The suit on the right is of dull green broadcloth, with trimmings of silk and silk covered buttons.

CURES
RHEUMATISM
LUMBAGO, SCIATICA
NEURALGIA and
KIDNEY TROUBLE

"5-DROPS" taken internally, rids the blood of the poisonous matter and acids which are the direct causes of these diseases. Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while a permanent cure is being effected by purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

DR. S. D. BLAND
Of Brewton, Ga., writes:
"I had been a sufferer for a number of years with Lumbago and Rheumatism in my arms and legs, and tried all the remedies that I could gather from medical works, and also consulted with a number of the best physicians, but found nothing that gave the relief obtained from "5-DROPS." I shall prescribe it in my practice for rheumatism and kindred diseases."

FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "5-DROPS," and test it yourself.

"5-DROPS" can be used any length of time without acquiring a "drug habit," as it is entirely free of opium, cocaine, alcohol, laudanum, and other similar ingredients.

Large Size Bottle, "5-DROPS" (300 Doses) $1.00. For Sale by Druggists.

If you are a business man, did you ever think of the field of opportunity that advertising opens to you? There is almost no limit to the possibilities of your business if you study how to turn trade into your store. If you are not getting your share of the business of your community there's a reason. People go where they are attracted — where they know what they can get and how much it is sold for. If you make direct statements in your advertising see to it that you are able to fulfill every promise you make. You will add to your business reputation and hold your customers. It will not cost as much to run your ad in this paper as you think. It is the persistent advertiser who gets there. Have something in the paper every issue, no matter how small. We will be pleased to quote you our advertising rates, particularly on the year's business.

MAKE YOUR APPEAL

to the public through the columns of this paper. With every issue it carries its message into the homes and lives of the people. Your competitor has his store news in this issue. Why don't you have yours? Don't blame the people for flocking to his store. They know what he has.

The Home Paper Gives you the reading matter in which you have the greatest interest—the home news. Its every issue will prove a welcome visitor to every member of the family. It should head your list of newspaper and periodical subscriptions.

Enlarging Your Business

If you are in business and you want to make more money you will read every word we have to say. Are you spending your money for advertising in haphazard fashion as if intended for charity, or do you advertise for direct results?

Did you ever stop to think how your advertising can be made a source of profit to you, and how its value can be measured in dollars and cents. If you have not, you are throwing money away.

Advertising is a modern business necessity, but must be conducted on business principles. If you are not satisfied with your advertising you should set aside a certain amount of money to be spent annually, and then carefully note the effect it has in increasing your volume of business; whether a 10, 20 or 30 per cent increase. If you watch this gain from year to you will become intensely interested in your advertising, and how you can make it enlarge your business.

If you try this method we believe you will not want to let a single issue of this paper go to press without something from your store.

We will be pleased to have you call on us, and we will take pleasure in explaining our annual contract for so many inches, and how it can be used in whatever amount that seems necessary to you.

If you can sell goods over the counter we can also show you why this paper will best serve your interests when you want to reach the people of this community.

JOB PRINTING We can do the finest class of printing, and we can do that class just a little cheaper than the other fellow. Wedding invitations, letter heads, bill heads, sale bills, statements, dodgers, cards, etc., all receive the same careful treatment—just a little better than seems necessary. Prompt delivery always.

Clothing, Shoes, Hats, Furnishings, Etc

AS HEREWITH ADVERTISED

I am confronted with one of the most difficult problems in my business career of twelve years in Emporium. In order to hold and increase the business of this store, with the class of people who desire reliable and well made clothing and shoes, I have, season after season, supplied my stock with the most elaborate varieties of new and up-to-date styles and fabrics, for old and young, regardless of how much goods were on hand. Owing to the ever increasing advance on all goods, my purchases thss fall were unusually large because I secured options on large lines and then headed off considerable rise over the prices which I paid.

The remarkable backward weather has not enabled me to dispose of the calculated quantity of goods, and that together with our already larger stock than what profitable business dictates, compells me to-day to realize cash on my goods regardless of loss, as the cheapest and best business method.

Talk About Sleeping.

Women are like men when it comes to sleeping. Plenty of restful sleep makes a man strong and vigorous and it makes a women happy and beautiful. But both women and men can procure restful sleep by using Sexine Pills. It is well known that nervousness and overwork prevent sleep. It is equally well known that Sexine Pills produce that delightful relaxation that folds one's tired limbs in Nature's arms while the unconscious body draws new life and vigor. Sexine Pills are the perfect tonic. They are guaranteed. They cost $1 a box; six boxes $5, with full guarantee enclosed. Address or call on R. C. Dodson, Druggist, Emporium, Pa., where they sell all the principal remedies and do not substitute.

How Sugar Melts.

If we drop a lump of sugar into a cup of tea we find it takes a considerable time to melt if allowed to remain at the bottom of the vessel, but if we hold it up in the spoon near the surface of the liquid it dissolves much more rapidly. This is owing to the sugar as it melts rendering the portion of the tea containing it heavier. The sweetened part, therefore, descends leaving the sugar constantly in contact with unsweetened or only partially sweetened tea—in fact, a continuous circulation of fluid is promoted until the whole is dissolved. When the sugar is placed or permitted to lie on the bottom of the cup it dissolves until the layer of fluid next it is thoroughly sweetened or saturated, when it practically ceases to dissolve any further, the sweetened and heavier stratum above it acting for a considerable time until the law of diffusion comes gradually into play, like an impervious covering, in keeping back the lighter, unsweetened fluid above; hence the reason also why stirring, in breaking up the saturated layer and allowing access to the unsweetened portion, is so effectual in bringing about the uniform sweetening of tea. Life is not infrequently sweetened by the same stirring up process.

The Family Pair.

The wriggly stillness of the study period was broken by a slamming door, and a thin boy in dirty, ragged clothes slouched across the room. Halfway to the teacher's desk he drawled, "Pa wants that you should let Jim go home right now." As Miss Davis looked a little doubtful, he added, "He kin come back right away."

The permission given, the two badly soiled, half starved sons of the most shiftless family in the district shuffled down the stairs. Very shortly Jim returned, wearing a pleased and important smile on his pathetic little face.

"I come as soon's I could. Pa's brother's dyin' to Poplar," he announced cheerfully. "That's why pa wanted me."

"But you weren't gone long; you didn't stay home. I can't see why you went at all," answered the bewildered Miss Davis.

"Why, pa's goin'," explained Jim.

"Yes, but what has that to do with you?" asked the teacher.

"Pa had to have his suspenders," was Jim's matter of fact reply.—Exchange.

The Power of Snails.

One day by way of experiment I harnessed two common garden snails to a toy gun carriage to see if they could pull it along, says a writer in a London magazine. Although the gun carriage was a heavy leaden one, the snails pulled it so easily that I loaded the body of the carriage with small shot. The snails, however, were more than equal to the task. Anxious to test their powers still further, I attached a toy cannon (made of lead and brass) behind the gun carriage, but the snails and their additional load moved on once again with the same apparent ease. Out of curiosity I decided to weigh the cannon, gun carriage and shot and to my great surprise found the total weight to be almost one pound. I venture to think this a very good load for two snails to manage.

The Frying Pan.

"People are always decrying the frying pan," said an experienced cook, "but the thing they refer to—cooking meat, etc., in a shallow pan with butter as fat—isn't really frying it; it is sauteing. The real frying pan is a deep kettle filled with hot clear lard or olive oil. In this the food—doughnut, croquette or whatever it may be—is immersed just long enough to make it crisp and brown on the outside and feathery and light on the inside. Food cooked in this way is entirely digestible if properly made. But so many cooks make the mistake of putting too much shortening in the mixture to be fried, and the fat inside, combining with the fat outside, prevents the formation of the crisp crust and makes the food soggy."

Meanness to a Blind Man.

A man with dark glasses over his eyes touched the conductor on the shoulder as the car neared Euclid avenue and East Fifty-fifth street.

"Pardon me," the man said, "but if you're the conductor I want to ask a favor. I'm blind, and I want you to lead me over to the curb when the car stops, if you'll be so good."

"Not that I minded the little bother o' doin' that for him," remarked the conductor when he got back on his car, "but 'tain't right to let a blind man go around all alone like that at night trying to find his way around in the dark."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Idea of Economy.

"It's all very well for you to preach economy," said his wife, "but I notice whenever I cut down expenses that you smoke better cigars and spend more money for your own pleasure than at any other time."

"Well, confound it, what do you suppose I want you to economize for, anyway?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Up and Down.

Mistress—Here's the man for that clock to be repaired. Get it for him. Nora—And, shure, where is it? Mistress—Upstairs, of course. Nora—Faith, an' I thought it had run down! —New York Press.

She Was Willing.

Man—Well, it's just this way: If I buy you a new coat I'll have to wear my old one another season. Wife—You sweet, generous thing, you!

None but the ill bred ridicule the peculiarities of others.

Upholstering and Repairing.

Henry Jaeger, the Fourth Street Harness Maker, is a practical upholsterer and desires the public, having any work in his line to call and see his large line of samples and learn prices, which are reasonable. No need in sending such work out of town. Satisfaction guaranteed. 37-tf.

Some disinfectants and germicides might be classed as drugs but, you do not want to be drugged just now with a bug killer. However, now is the time to think of getting after the rose bugs and currant worms.

We have a full line of the "remedies" for that class of pests. Also a non-poisonous bed bug exterminator in small cans.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the shipwreck of the steamer on which Miss Genevieve Leslie, an American heiress, Lord Winthrope, an Englishman, and Tom Blake, a brusque American, were passengers. The three were tossed upon an uninhabited island and were the only ones not drowned. Blake recovered from a drunken stupor. Blake, shunned on the boat, because of his roughness, became a hero as preserver of the helpless pair. The Englishman was suing for the hand of Miss Leslie. Blake started to swim back to the ship to recover what was left. Blake returned safely. Winthrope wasted his last match on a cigarette, for which he was scored by Blake. Their first meal was a dead fish. The trio started a ten mile hike for higher land. Thirst attacked them. Blake was compelled to carry Miss Leslie on account of weariness. He taunted Winthrope. They entered the jungle. That night was passed roosting high in a tree. The next morning they descended to the open again. All three constructed hats to shield themselves from the sun. They then feasted on cocoanuts, the only procurable food. Miss Leslie showed a liking for Blake, but detested his roughness. Led by Blake they established a home in some cliffs. Blake found a fresh water spring. Miss Leslie faced an unpleasant situation. They planned their campaign. Blake recovered his surveyor's magnifying glass, thus insuring fire. He started a jungle fire.

CHAPTER IX.—Continued.

Blake picked a path along the edge of the rill, where the moist vegetation, though scorched, had refused to burn. After the first abrupt ledge, up which Blake had to drag his companions, the ascent was easy. But as they climbed around an outjutting corner of the steep right wall of the cleft Blake muttered a curse of disappointment. He could now see that the cleft did not run to the top of the cliff, but through it, like a tiny box canyon. The sides rose sheer and smooth as walls. Midway, at the highest point of the cleft, the baobab towered high above the ridge crest, its gigantic trunk filling a third of the breadth of the little gorge. Unfortunately it stood close to the left wall.

"Here's luck for you!" growled Blake. "Why couldn't the blamed old tree have grown on the other side? We might have found a way to climb it. Guess we'll have to smoke out another leopard. We're no nearer those birds' nests than we were yesterday."

"By Jove, look here!" exclaimed Winthrope. "This is our chance for antelope! Here by the spring are bamboos—real bamboos—and only half the thicket burned."

"What of them?" demanded Blake.

"Bows—arrows—and did you not agree that they would make knives?"

"Umph—we'll see. What is it, Miss Jenny?"

"Isn't that a hole in the big tree?"

"Looks like it. These baobabs are often hollow."

"Perhaps that is where the leopard had his den," added Winthrope.

"Shouldn't wonder. We'll go and see."

"But, Mr. Blake," protested the girl, "may there not be other leopards?"

"Might have been; but I'll bet they vt out with the other. Look how the tree is scorched. Must have been stacks of dry brush around the hole, nough to smoke out a fireman. We'll look and see if they left any soup bones lying around. First, though, here's your drink, Miss Jenny."

As he spoke, Blake kicked aside some smouldering branches and led the way to the crevice whence the spring trickled from the rock into a shallow stone basin. When all had drunk their fill of the clear cool water Blake took up his club and walked straight across to the baobab. Less than 30 steps brought him to the narrow opening in the trunk of the huge tree. At first he could make out nothing in the dimly lit interior; but the fetid, catty odor was enough to convince him that he had found the leopards' den.

He caught the vague outlines of a long body, crouched five or six yards away, on the far side of the hollow. He sprang back, his club brandished to strike. But the expected attack did not follow. Blake glanced about as though considering the advisability of a retreat. Winthrope and Miss Leslie were staring at him, white-faced. The sight of their terror seemed to spur him to dare-devil bravado; though his actions may rather have been due to the fact that he realized the futility of flight, and so rose to the requirements of the situation—the grim need to stand and face the danger.

"Get behind the bamboos!" he called, and as they hurriedly obeyed, he caught up a stone and flung it in at the crouching beast.

He heard the missile strike with a soft thud that told him he had not missed his mark, and he swung up his club in both hands. Given half a chance he would smash the skull of the female as he had crushed her blinded mate. One moment after another passed, and he stood poised for the shock, tense and scowling. Not so much as a snarl came from within. The truth flashed upon him.

"Smothered!" he yelled.

The other saw him dart in through the hole. A moment later two limp grayish bodies were flung out into the open. Immediately after Blake reappeared, dragging the body of the mother leopard.

"It's all right; they're dead!" cried Winthrope, and he ran forward to look at the bodies.

Miss Leslie followed, hardly less curious.

"Are they all dead, Mr. Blake?" she inquired.

"Wiped out—whole family. The old cat stayed by her kittens, and all smothered together—lucky for us! Get busy with those bamboos, Win. I'm going to have these skins, and the sooner we get the cub meat hung up and curing, the better for us."

"Leopard meat again!" rejoined Winthrope.

"Spring leopard, young and tender! What more could you ask? Get a move on you."

"Can I do anything, Mr. Blake?" asked Miss Leslie.

"Hunt a shady spot."

"But I really mean it."

"Well, if that's straight, you might go on along the gully, and see if there's any place to get to the top. You could pick up sticks on the way back, if any are left. We'll have to fumigate this tree hole before we adopt it for a residence."

"Will it be long before you finish with your—with the bodies?"

"Well, now, look here, Miss Jenny; it's going to be a mess, and I wouldn't mind hauling the carcasses clear down the gully, out of sight, if it was to be the only time. But it's not, and you have got to get used to it, sooner or later. So we'll start now."

"I suppose, if I must, Mr. Blake—Really, I wish to help."

"Good. That's something like! Think you can learn to cook?"

"See what I did this morning."

Blake took the cord of cocoanut fiber which she held out to him, and tested its strength.

"Well, I'll be blessed!" he said. "This is something like. If you don't look out, you'll make quite a campmate, Miss Jenny. But now, trot along. This is hardly arctic weather, and our abattoir don't include a cold-storage plant. The sooner these lambs are dressed, the better."

CHAPTER X.

Problems in Woodcraft.

IT WAS no pleasant sight that met Miss Leslie's gaze upon her return. The neatest of butchering can hardly be termed aesthetic; and Blake and Winthrope lacked both skill and tools. Between the penknife and an improvised blade of bamboo, they had flayed the two cubs and haggled off the flesh. The ragged strips, spitted on bamboo rods, were already searing in the fierce sun-rays.

Miss Leslie would have slipped into the hollow of the baobab with her armful of fagots and brush; but Blake waved a bloody knife above the body of the mother leopard, and beckoned the girl to come nearer.

"Hold on a minute, please," he said. "What did you find out?"

Miss Leslie drew a few steps nearer, and forced herself to look at the revolting sight. She found it still more difficult to withstand the odor of the fresh blood. Winthrope was pale and nauseated. The sight of his distress caused the girl to forget her own loathing. She drew a deep breath, and succeeded in countering Blake's expectant look with a half-smile.

"How well are you getting along!" she exclaimed.

"Didn't think you could stand it. But you've got grit all right, if you are a lady," Blake said admiringly. "Say, you'll make it yet! Now, how about the gully?"

"There is no place to climb up. It runs along like this, and then slopes down. But there is a cliff at the end, as high as these walls."

"Twenty feet," muttered Blake. "Confound the luck. It isn't that jump-off; but how in—how are we going to get up on the cliff? There's an everlasting lot of omelettes in those birds' nests. If only that bloomin'—how's that, Win, me b'y?—that bloomin', blawsted baobab was on t'other side. The wood's almost soft as punk. We could drive in pegs, and climb up the trunk."

"There are other trees beyond it," remarked Miss Leslie.

"Then maybe we can shin up—"

"I fear the branches that overhang the cliff are too slender to bear any weight."

"And it's too infernally high to climb up to this overhanging baobab limb."

"I say," ventured Winthrope, "if we had an ax, now, we might cut up one of the trees, and make a ladder."

"Oh, yes; and if we had a ladder, we might climb up the cliff!"

"But, Mr. Blake, is there not some way to cut down one of the trees? The tree itself would be a ladder if it fell in such a way as to lean against the cliff."

"There's only the penknife," answered Blake. "So I guess we'll have to scratch eggs off our menu card Spring leopard for ours! Now, if you really want to help, you might scrape the soup bones out of your boudoir, and fetch a lot more brush. It'll take a big fire to rid the hole of that cat smell."

"Will not the tree burn?"

"No; these hollow baobabs have green bark on the inside as well as out. Funny thing, that! We'd have to keep a fire going a long time to burn through."

"Yet it would burn in time?"

"Yes; but we're not going to—"

"Then why not burn through the trunk of one of those small trees, instead of chopping it down?"

"By—heck, Miss Jenny, you've got an American headpiece! Come on. Sooner we get the thing started, the better."

Neither Winthrope nor Miss Leslie was reluctant to leave the vicinity of the carcasses. They followed close after Blake, around the monstrous bole of the baobab. A little beyond it stood a group of slender trees, whose trunks averaged eight inches at the base. Blake stopped at the second one, which grew nearest to the seaward side of the cleft.

"Here's our ladder," he said. "Get some firewood. Pound the bushes, though, before you go poking into them. May be snakes here."

"Snakes?—oh!" cried Miss Leslie, and she stood shuddering at the danger she had already incurred.

The fire had burnt itself out on a bare ledge of rock between them and the baobab, and the clumps of dry brush left standing in this end of the cleft were very suggestive of snakes, now that Blake had called attention to the possibility of their presence.

He laughed at his hesitating companions. "Go on, go on! Don't squeal till you're bit. Most snakes hike out, if you give them half a chance. Take a stick each of you, and pound the bushes."

Thus urged, both started to work. But neither ventured into the thicker clumps. When they returned, with large armfuls of sticks and twigs, they found that Blake had used his glass to light a handful of dry bark, out in the sun, and was nursing it into a small fire at the base of the tree, on the side next the cliff.

"Now, Miss Jenny," he directed, "you're to keep this going—not too big a fire—understand? Same time you can keep on fetching brush to fumigate your cat hole. It needs it, all right."

"Will not that be rather too much for Miss Leslie?" asked Winthrope.

"Well, if she'd rather come and rub brains on the skins,—Indian tan, you know—or—"

"How can you mention such things before a lady?" protested Winthrope.

"Beg your pardon, Miss Leslie! you see, I'm not much used to ladies' company. Anyway, you've got to see and hear about these things. And now I'll have to get the strings for Win's bamboo bows. Come on, Win. We've got that old tabby to peel, and a lot more besides."

Miss Leslie's first impulse was to protest against being left alone, when at any moment some awful venomous serpent might come darting at her out of the brush or the crevices in the rocks. But her half-parted lips drew firmly together, and after a moment's hesitancy, she forced herself to the task which had been assigned her. The fire, once started, required little attention. She could give most of her time to gathering brush for the fumigation of the leopard den.

She had collected quite a heap of fuel at the entrance of the hollow, when she remembered that the place would first have to be cleared of its accumulation of bones. A glance at her companions showed that they were in the midst of tasks even more revolting. It was certainly disagreeable to do such things; yet, as Mr. Blake had said, others had to do them. It was now her time to learn. She could see him smile at her hesitation.

Stung by the thought of his half-contemptuous pity, she caught up a forked stick, and forced herself to enter the tree-cave. The stench met her like a blow. It nauseated and all but overpowered her. She stood for several moments in the center of the cavity, sick and faint. Had it been even the previous day, she would have run out into the open air.

Presently she grew a little more accustomed to the stench, and began to rake over the soft, dry mold of the den floor with her forked stick. Bones!—who had ever dreamed of such a mess of bones?— big bones and little bones and skulls; old bones dry and almost buried; moldy bones; bones still half-covered with bits of flesh and gristle—the remnants of the leopard family's last meal.

At last all were scraped out and flung in a heap, three or four yards away from the entrance. Miss Leslie looked at the result of her labor with a satisfied glance, followed by a sigh of relief. Between the heat and her unwonted exercise, she was greatly fatigued. She stepped around to a shadier spot to rest.

With a start she remembered the fire.

When she reached it there were only a few dying embers left. She gathered dead leaves and shreds of fibrous inner bark, and knelt beside the dull coals to blow them into life. She could not bear the thought of having to confess her carelessness to Blake.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Drudgery in the Kitchen.

The path of progress is clear. There is no more reason why the woman in modern civilization should scrub and cook and darn and dust than there is why these things should be done by men. The development of improved machinery and the growth of labor saving devices of all kinds will finally obviate the necessity of doing these things each day in each home through the land. Co-operation, which we are slowly learning to greet as a friend, will overcome the drudgery and make the life of a woman as enjoyable and eventful as that of the man.—Nearing and Watson in "Economics."

Help us to remember that greater than any church or creed is kindness

The Best Food for Workers.

The best food for those who work with hand or brain is never high priced.

The best example of this is found in Quaker Oats. It stands at the top among foods that supply nourishment and vigor, without taxing the digestion, and yet it is the least expensive food one can eat.

This great food value and low cost make it an ideal food for families who want to get the greatest good from what they eat.

Laborers, factory or farm hands, fed plentifully on Quaker Oats will work better and with less fatigue than if fed on almost any other kind of food. All of these facts were proved and very interesting information about human foods were gathered by Professor Fisher of Yale University in 1908. In addition to the regular package Quaker Oats is packed in large sized family packages either with or without china dishes. 8

Labor Unions Fight Tuberculosis.

Ten fraternal and benefit organizations, with a membership of nearly 4,000,000, and three international labor unions with a membership of over 100,000 have joined the ranks of the fighters against consumption within the last year, according to a statement of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The fraternal orders and unions now in the fight against tuberculosis are the Modern Woodmen of America, Brotherhood of American Yeomen, Order of Eagles, Improved Order of Red Men, Knights of Pythias, Royal Arcanum, Workmen's Circle, Knights of Columbus, Royal League, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and Foresters of America, the International Photo-Engravers' Union of North America, the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union, the International Boot and Shoe Workers' union, and the International Typographical union.

That Got Him.

A theatrical manager delighted in taking a rise out of conceited or vain members of his company.

"I see you are getting on fairly well," he remarked.

"Fairly? I am getting on very well," replied the hero of the play, promptly. "I played Hamlet for the first time last night. You can see by the papers' glowing criticisms how well I got on.'

"I have not read them," replied the other, quietly, "but I was there."

"Oh, you were. Well, you noticed how swimmingly everything went off? Of course, I made a bungle of one part by falling into Ophelia's grave, but I think the audience appreciated even that."

"I know they did," said the manager, with a slight smile; "but they were frightfully sorry when you climbed out of it again!"

He Forgot Something.

"Is that all you have to say to me?" she queried, looking off into space.

"Great heavens, girl!" said he abashed, "what more can I say? Haven't I told you that I worship the very ground you walk on? Haven't I offered you every iota of my worldly possessions? Haven't I said that you would never want for anything, that your relatives could come and stay as long as they wished, that I would work my fingers bare for you, and that I would devote my entire existence to you?"

"Oh, yes, you said all that," she replied, wearily, "but—"

"But what?" he asked, tremulously

"You—you didn't say right out and out 'I love you,' and that's what I wanted to hear most of all."

Hated to Take the Money.

Frank I. Cobb, the chief editorial writer of the New York World, was on a vacation in the Maine woods once when Joseph Pulitzer, owner of the World, wanted to communicate with him. Mr. Pulitzer sent Cobb a cipher message.

Presently a country operator drove in to the Cobb camp and handed Cobb the message, which read something like this:

"Simplicity—aggrandizement — grif fon—gerald—roderick — hopscotch — hamfat—publicity."

"There's a dollar to collect for delivering that message," said the operator, "but I hate to take it. Somebody along the line got it all balled up, and they ain't no sense to it."

THE DIFFERENCE

Coffee Usually Means Sickness, But Postum Always Means Health.

Those who have never tried the experiment of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum in its place and in this way regaining health and happiness can learn much from the experience of others who have made the trial.

One who knows says: "I drank coffee for breakfast every morning until I had terrible attacks of indigestion producing days of discomfort and nights of sleeplessness. I tried to give up the use of coffee entirely, but found it hard to go from hot coffee to a glass of water. Then I tried Postum.

"It was good and the effect was so pleasant that I soon learned to love it and have used it for several years. I improved immediately after I left off coffee and took on Postum and am now entirely cured of my indigestion and other troubles all of which were due to coffee. I am now well and contented and all because I changed from coffee to Postum.

"Postum is much easier to make right every time than coffee, for it is so even and always reliable. We never use coffee now in our family. We use Postum, and are always well."

"There's a reason" and it is proved by trial.

REAL NEED.

"I say, old chap, will you lend a friend a dollar."

"Is he really in need of it?"

"Rather. He wants to pay me with it."

SUFFERED TERRIBLY.

How Relief from Distressing Kidney Trouble Was Found.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wolf, 388 W. Morgan St., Tipton, Mo., says: "Inflammation of the bladder reached its climax last spring and I suffered terribly. My back ached and pained so I could hardly get around and the secretions were scanty, frequent of passage and painful. I was tired all the time and very nervous. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and after taking a few boxes was cured and have been well ever since."

A Terrible Disease.

"Do you own an automobile?" inquired the unobservant party. The other shook his head sadly.

"No," he sighed, "I have been a sufferer all my life from chronic pedestrianism."

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Louisville, Ky.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has certainly done me a world of good and I cannot praise it enough. I suffered from irregularities, dizziness, nervousness, and a severe female trouble. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored me to perfect health and kept me from the operating table. I will never be without this medicine in the house."—Mrs. Sam'l Lee, 3523 Fourth St., Louisville, Ky.

Another Operation Avoided.

Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from female troubles, and my doctor said an operation was my only chance, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me without an operation."—Lena V. Henry, R. F. D. 3.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

AS UNDERSTOOD IN BOSTON

The Traditional Episode of "Little Miss Muffet" Brought Into Every-Day Cognizance.

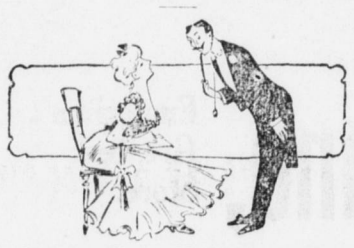
A diminutive specimen of juvenile femininity yclept Miss Muffet had placed herself in a sitting posture upon an article of household furniture ordinarily termed an ottoman or hassock—

Miniaturing to the gratification of her gustatory organs by ingurgitating the coagulated portion of bovine lacteal fluid mingled with the watery serum of the same which remains after the coagulated portion has been segregated and withdrawn.

Happening to glance downward she observed that a specimen of the genus Aranea, class Arachnida, remarkable for its ability to produce filaments of extraordinary tenuity from its own interior, had taken a position upon the ottoman or hassock in immediate proximity.

Which totally unexpected incident aroused her apprehension to such an extent that she immediately, not to say precipitately, arose from her sitting posture and departed from the locality, leaving the intruder in undisputed possession of the apartment.

NOT SO BAD.



Nervous Lady—Don't your experiments frighten you terribly, professor? I hear that your assistant met with a horrible death by falling four thousand feet from an aeroplane.

Bold Aviator—Oh, that report was greatly exaggerated.

Nervous Lady—Exaggerated! How?

Bold Aviator—It wasn't much more than two thousand five hundred feet that he fell.

RASH ALL OVER BOY'S BODY.

Awful, Crusted, Weeping Eczema on Little Sufferer—A Score of Treatments Prove Dismal Failures.

Cure Achieved by Cuticura.

"My little boy had an awful rash all over his body and the doctor said it was eczema. It was terrible, and used to water awfully. Any place the water went it would form another sore and it would become crusted. A score or more physicians failed utterly and dismally in their efforts to remove the trouble. Then I was told to use the Cuticura Remedies. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and before we had used half the Resolvent I could see a change in him. In about two months he was entirely well. George F. Lambert, 139 West Centre St., Mahanoy City, Pa., Sept. 26 and Nov. 4, 1907."

The Rare Gift of Courtesy.

Courtesy includes not merely social kindness, graces of speech, absence of rudeness, but honorable treatment of business associates and of all the fellow citizens with whom a man of affairs may have business to transact. It is not American to keep one citizen waiting all day at the door because he is poor, and to grant another citizen an interview because it is believed he is rich. Wisdom is not confined in a purse, and frequently much wisdom may be learned from a poor man.

Why He Won.

Abou Ben Adhem set forth his claim.

"I never lied about what a good time I had on my vacation," he cried.

And, lo, etc.

Some people would drown with a life preserver at hand. They are the kind that suffer from Rheumatism and Neuralgia when they can get Hamlins Wizard Oil, the best of all pain remedies.

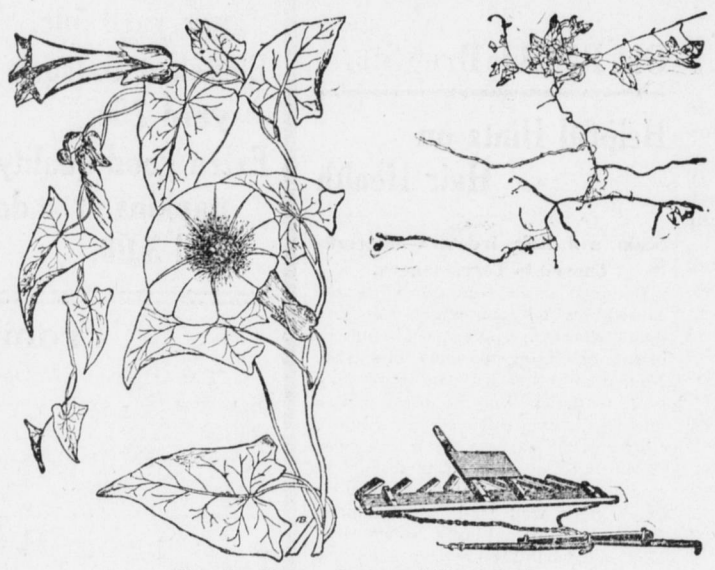
METHOD TO COMPLETELY ERADICATE THE BINDWEED

This Injurious Plant May Be Exterminated in Any Field or Orchard if Proper Effort Made—
By H. R. Cox.

The only successful methods for the eradication of bindweed must be based on the suppression of all top growth, in order to starve out the underground parts. A great many farmers are looking for some easy method of killing the bindweed, and in the meantime are letting it cover the fields and festoon the trees of the orchard. They are looking for some magic "remedy" that will completely eradicate the weed with a small amount of exertion on their part. It must be understood that such a formidable enemy as this weed requires heroic treament. Other farmers have gone at the problem less heedlessly, as in the case of a man who followed the root of a plant to the depth of four feet and then applied a large quantity of salt in the hole.

Various methods have been tried to keep down the top growth, and hence starve out the underground parts. There are three methods that have given satisfactory results, namely, clean cultivation, alfalfa growing and hog pasturing. There are other methods that have been tried, but not with a large measure of success. These include the placing of building paper, beet pulp, apple pomace, straw or manure on the ground to smother the weed growth, and also the application of chemicals. Conditions in irrigated regions are complicated by the fact that bindweed is often allowed to grow along irrigation ditches, the water in which distributes the seed. The water of streams, especially at flood times, is also a factor in distributing the seeds and roots to other land.

Bindweed can be eradicated by clean cultivation if thorough and persistent. The case requires going over the land once every week or ten days during the entire growing season of the weed, which is between the spring and fall frosts. Two years of this treatment will accomplish the result in most cases, and it is probable that one year will suffice where the plant does not root too deeply. The difficulty is that many farmers will not cultivate as thoroughly as is necessary. Even a small top growth is enough to form some new underground growth and rejuvenate the old roots or root stocks, thereby carrying the plant over to the next season. Cultivation has the further advantage of inducing a rapid germination of all seeds of the weed which are in the soil, the young seedlings being promptly destroyed by the subsequent tillage.



Showing Flower, Roots and Weed Cutter.

Conditions in orchard lands are such as to offer a favorable opportunity to get rid of this weed, or at least so reduce it that it does not do much damage. Many orchards use a type of implement that has been found very successful in the control of the weeds. It consists of a beam resting on the ground, varying in width from eight to 12 feet, with a series of knives below, all inclined inward. Its draft is light, it makes a wide cut, it can be worked close to the trees and is comparatively inexpensive.

PROFITS IN BASKET WILLOW

American Soil Well Adapted to Tree and Wide Opportunities for Articles Made from It
—By W. F. Hubbard.

Willow growing gives an uncommonly high margin of profit. A large demand for willow is now supplied by import, and as American-grown rods are of good quality when proper care is taken in their culture there is no reason why the further development of the industry should not be possible if more American farmers can be convinced of its practicability.

Of late years willow furniture has sprung into fashion and to-day no minor industry is more prosperous than that devoted to its supply. The wages are good and the manufacturers demand a steady supply of superior willow.

This is now almost entirely received from France at a price which will give the entire trade to the American if he can equal the quality.

Great care should be taken in the selection of the willow beds. Rich, permanently moist sandy loam gives best returns, though ordinary moist sandy land often yields profitable crops of willows.

Poor soils produce paying crops where there is a market for short rods. Avoid land on which water is stagnant during the summer. If by drainage the water level on such land can be lowered at least six feet below the surface the situation may be considered appropriate.

Do not plant willows in localities where early frosts occur. The tender shoots are easily injured by the cold.

Plow ten or twelve inches deep in the fall, prior to planting the following spring. This turns the top layer of the soil so deep that weed seeds cannot spring up.

If rain is insufficient, irrigate the willow bed if possible, but thorough drainage must be provided, as water must not stand on the surface. It is best also to keep the land well drained during the winter.

Returns depend very largely upon the method of culture, but more upon the variety of the willow planted, because the shoots of even the best varieties and in the most suitable soil grow brittle after the stools become old.

The American green and Welsh willows are most generally planted. The rods of the former peel readily, split readily and are snow white, hard, flexible and heavy.

They have a tendency to branch, however, and unless the stools are planted close together a large percentage of the rods branch so much that they are often unfit for peeled stock.

A good basket willow possesses the following characteristics: (1) Ability to yield an annual and uniformly paying crop of rods; (2) flexibility; (3) productiveness—i. e., many shoots to each stool; (4) slender and branchless rods; (5) smooth and white wood after peeling.

Cuttings for plantings should be made from one-year-old shoots. The length of the slips is regulated by the condition of the soil. The richer the soil is the shorter the cuttings may be. Generally they are made eight inches long for moist, rich soil, and 12 inches for dry, sandy soil.

Although it is generally advised to prepare cuttings just before planting, they may be made several weeks in advance and partially buried in moderately moist sand and stored in a cold barn until needed.

Bury the cuttings in sand to within one inch of the top. Care should be taken to have the buds point upward.

Plant early in the spring, as soon as the frost is out of the ground. In spacing the plants the following principle holds for all willows and for all soils: The closer the cuttings are planted the more valuable—i. e., more flexible, tough, slender and branchless the rods become. On the other hand, they must not be planted so close that the soil in and between the rows cannot be cultivated.

Poultry in the Orchard.

Poultry may often with advantage be kept in the orchard. This makes it possible to engage in poultry keeping on a considerable scale without any cost for land, writes James Dryden in Farm Press. In other words, a double use of the land may be made. The trees afford shade to the fowls in warm weather. It will be necessary to furnish them ample green food at all times, especially when the apples are on the ground. If no other green food is available they are liable to eat an injurious amount of apples. On the other hand, poultry is a decided advantage to the orchard as an aid in the warfare on insect enemies.

Pay for Stock Destroyed.

The legislature of New York has been asked to levy an appropriation for the commissioner of agriculture of $25,000 to pay one-third of the full appraised value of live stock destroyed on account of foot and mouth disease and for the expense of suppressing and eradicating that disease.

FINE RECIPE FOR COLDS.

Any druggist can supply these ingredients or will get them from his wholesale house.

"Mix half pint of good whiskey, two ounces of glycerine; half ounce of Concentrated pine compound. Shake the bottle well each time and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful four times a day." This prescription is said to work wonders.

The Concentrated pine is a special pine product and comes only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in an airtight case, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated."

FIRST FORK.

At the beginning of this week, the latest statistics show that forty-three bear have been captured in the vicinity of Sinnamahoning and First Fork.

Health Inspector, H. B. Muthersbaugh, of Driftwood, transacted business in our valley last week.

Our two scribes must certainly commend our good friend J. R. Batchelder for responding to our words from First Fork. He certainly gave our readers a good bear story and hopes he will continue his stories.

The school directors of Grove township held a very important business meeting last Saturday.

The B. & S., are working on the water line at Lick Island. They are trying to fix their water supply so that it won't freeze this winter.

L. C. Wykoff is entertaining a lot of hunters from Philadelphia and other places. They expect to hunt in our forests during season.

Nathan Silin and family from Sinnamahoning visited along First Fork on Sunday.

Some of our young hunters will soon change their minds for a short time. They will think of their deer instead of their dear. After hunting season they will take up the latter again.

We notice that Judge John A. Wykoff and Archey Penrith from Sinnamahoning spent some time on their former homes.

O. L. Bailey, Edward Logue and B. B. Lorshbaugh, Supervisors of Grove township, took the measurements of the road from Potter county line to Sinnamahoning.

Helpful Hints on Hair Health

Scalp and Hair Troubles Generally Caused by Carelessness.

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe which also produces baldness. Never use a comb or brush, belonging to some one else. No matter how cleanly the owner may be, these articles may be infected with microbes, which will infect your scalp. It's far easier to catch hair microbes than it is to get rid of them, and a single stroke of an infected comb or brush may well lead to baldness. Never try on anybody else's hat. Many a hat band is a resting place for microbes.

If you happen to be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair or baldness, we have a remedy which we believe will completely relieve these troubles. We are so sure of this that we offer it to you with the understanding that it will cost you nothing for the trial if it does not produce the results we claim. The remedy is called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We honestly believe it to be the most scientific remedy for scalp and hair troubles, and we know of nothing else that equals it for effectiveness, because of the results it has produced in thousands of cases.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is devised to banish dandruff, restore natural color when its loss has been brought about by disease, and make the hair naturally silky, soft and glossy. It does this because it stimulates the hair follicles, destroys the germ matter, and brings about a free, healthy circulation of blood, which nourishes the hair roots, causing them to tighten and grow more hair. We want everybody who has any trouble with hair or scalp to know that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is the best hair tonic and restorative in existence, and no one should scoff at or doubt this statement until they have put our claims to a fair test, with the understanding that they pay us nothing for the remedy if it does not give full and complete satisfaction in every particular. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Emporium only at our store—The Rexall Store. The Emporium Drug Co.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Emporium Women are Finding Relief at Last,

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains, they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and healthy is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Frank Mundy, W. Fourth St., Emporium, Pa., says: "Since using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Geo. C. Taggart's drug store, I am feeling much better. My kidneys were very weak, the secretions passing too frequently and I suffered from a dull, nagging backache and splitting headaches. Sharp pains would dart through the small of my back and at times my feet and hands would swell. Doan's Kidney Pills regulated the kidney secretions and drove away the pains and aches in my back and head. I cheerfully recommend this remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Pimples, Blackheads, Eczema, Etc.

QUICKLY CURED.

"It is astonishing" remarked a well known authority on diseases of the skin, how such a large number of people, especially ladies are by attractively written advertisements, induced to purchase some one of the many beauty Creams now on the market, not knowing of course, that they mostly contain oily or greesy substances that clog the pores of the skin and are, for that reason, the very worst thing that they could possibly use. My treatment of Pimples, Blackheads, Blotches and all eruptions of the skin, are as follows, and has invariably proved very successful: Wash the face carefully every night before retiring with warm water and a little oat meal tied up in a small cloth bag, then, after drying well, use the following inexpensive and perfectly harmless prescription, which can be filled at at any drug store: Clearola ½ oz., Ether 1 oz., Alcohol 7 ounces. Use this mixture on the face as often as possible during the day, but use night and morning anyway, allowing it to remain on the face at least ten minutes then the powdery film may be wiped off. Do not wash the face for some little time after using. By following this simple treatment, you will soon have a clear brilliant complexion.
